12. Miss Tatu is a Community Health Promoter in Tumaini home-based care. She serves patients who have different issues. She does not work alone but in partnership with nurses, counselors, and community members. Family members also play a great role in supporting the community health provider in monitoring the client and also the development of individual care plans where the clients' status determines the objectives of the care, the resources required are determined, and the level of participation of the family. The individual care plan guides the community health provider in the provision of services and ensuring that each client is satisfied. During one of the visits, he found out that one of her clients' conditions who was suffering from a chronic illness had worsened hence the need to refer him to a health care facility. The referral however could not be done without the consent of the client and the family as well. Miss Tatu through her connections with service providers called one of the family members to consent to a referral.
